ENTERPRISING SELECTMAN mproves Road Which Has Long Needed Attention.

A great improvement has been brought about in the road at Liberty Hill, near the schoolhouse. At this particular point a bad sliding ledge cropped out above ground and made the roadway very bad and unsafe at times. It has been the custom to haul loam upon this stretch of road for twenty-five years or more at a cost of from $7 upward per annum.

twenty-five years or more at a cost of from $7 upward per annum.
Various boards of selectmen have threatened to attend to the road as it should be and have always passed it up until at last R. P. Burgee, selectman for the North Society of the town, got busy, and with a force of men and teams has made the road the best within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. He had the sliding ledge blasted out and by filling in below the ledge has reduced the grade.

The road is very generally used, particularly by the residents of the South society. Many of the citizens

$4,500 AND COSTS.

Special Verdict for Plaintiff in Case of Jones vs. the Connecticut Co.

The jury in the case of Albert E. Jones vs. the Connecticut company, brought in a special verdict for the plaintiff to recover damages of $4.500 and costs, after being out for three bours, Friday afternoon. Special verdicts have seldom been asked for in this county or even in this state and the procedure interested even the attorneys in court.

Attorney Berry for the Connecticut company requested Judge Robinson to Attorney Berry for the Connecticut company requested Judge Robinson to direct the jury to bring in a special verdict, the granting of the request being discretionary with the court, and Judge Robinson allowed the request and Attorney Berry prepared the following questions for the jurors, which they took into the jury room during their deliberations and answered, the questions and answers being read by the clerk of the court as part of their finding on their return to the court room:

inding on their return to the court room:

1—Were the insulators of this pattern made by the Ohio Brass company in generals use by street railways of this country at the time of the accident? Ans.—Yes.

2—Was the insulator which broke, defective? Ans.—Yes.

3—If you find it was defective could the defect have been discovered by a reasonably careful inspection and the exercise of the highest degree of care? Ans.—No.

4—Did the motorman see the wire as soon as could reasonably have been expected of him by exercising the highest degree of care? Ans.—No.

Throughout the case Attorney Berry laid particular stress on the points covered by the questions.

Attorney Berry contended that the insulator which broke, letting down a wire that later was the cause of the death of Emil Jones, while he was a passenger on a car of the Connecticut company between Mechanicaville and Putnam, on the night of July 15, of this year, was of standard type and of this year, was of standard type and of the best quality known and if it broke because of seme hidden defect that could not be discovered and guarded against the company was not guilty of negligence, having exercised due care in inspection of the line.

The jury in their answer to Attorney Berry's question agreed that the defect could not be discovered by a reasonably careful inspection and the exercise of the highest degree of care; but their answers to the questions as to whether the motorman saw the hanging wire as soon as could reasonably be expected of him and as to whether he stopped the car as soon as he could, are answered in the negative, thereby recording their opinion that the responsibility for the accident was not wholly due to the defect in the insulator in the overhead wire.

After the verdict, Mr. Jones, relieved of a heavy nervous strain, spoke feelingly of his dead son and said that while the result of the suit would not give him back his boy it would aid him in caring for another son, who is fil.
